ITALY TO HAVE NEW LAW TODAY

Machinery of Fascist Regime to Be Set in Motion to Destroy Opposition and to Proscribe Individuals

COUNTRY ELECTRIFIED BY PREMIER'S SPEECH

In Public Speech Mussolini Tells Fascists That Today They Will Have Acts They Have Been Waiting for

ROME, Nov. 4.—Within twenty-four hours the machinery of the Fascist regime will be set in motion to destroy every trace of organized opposition against Mussolini, and to proscribe every individual suspected of antagonism to him, by a phrase from the balcony of the Palazzo Chigi this morning, after the solemnly impressive observance of the eighth anniversary of the victory over Austria, electrified the Italian nation into realization that it is on the eve of one of the most momentous decisions in Fascist history.

"Tomorrow," said the Prime Minister, "we will have the acts you have been waiting for."

His cryptic phrase is interpreted universally as meaning that before another sun sets, the demand for swift punishment—even the supreme penalty—of those implicated in attacks against his life, a demand which has been sweeping through the country since the attempt to kill him at Bologna, will bear some tangible fruit.

The Premier's statement has not been divulged officially, but Fascist circles are convinced that they are inspired by the Biblical "eye for eye" and that they will heed the popular appeal to take every step humanly possible to protect the man whom Fascists regard as sacred. It is considered almost certain that three measures will be introduced.

First: That the recently approved death penalty for attempts against the life of the Premier or members of the royal family shall be made retroactive. This would affect the former Socialist deputy, Zaniboni, and his alleged accomplices, General Capello, concerned in the telephone attack on Mussolini, and General Caviglioglio, who shot him in the face.

Second: Extensive reorganization of the police system with the object of strengthening vigilance over anti-Fascists.

Third: Sweeping revision of the membership of the Fascist party, which would give the opportunity of the expulsion of lukewarm suspected members.

Authorities at Bologna have accidentally discovered, in a small town near there on October 9, predicting an attempt against the Premier's life. A well-known anti-Fascist, to whom the communication was addressed, was arrested.

Simple Marriage Unites Prince and Princess

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4.—A simple civil ceremony today united the royal couple of Sweden and Belgium in the persons of Princess Astrid of Sweden and Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium.

The romantic love match of the young couple today brought them to the ancient throne room of the Swedish royal palace, where they were married before a brilliant assembly that included four European sovereigns.

With all the brilliance of the company the note of present day democracy was struck in the presence of Jurgensmaier Carl Lindhagen, who read the usual wedding formula, and then added: "In virtue of my office I now declare you man and wife."

Another Province Likely to Fall to Cantonese Armies

MOY, Nov. 5.—The impending capture of another province from Marshal Sun Chuan-Pang by the Cantonese is suggested by reports that the Southerners have taken Chang Chow in the southern part of Fukien Province and are nearing Yenching from the north. Troops that are making common cause with the Northerners in resisting the inroads of the Cantonese are declared to be falling back upon Tungan and Chuanchow after losing Changchow. Observers are predicting the Cantonese will have full control of the entire province within a few days.

B.C. Electric Plans Second Unit Already Of Big Hydro Plant

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4.—The development of Vancouver and the Fraser Valley will be such within the next five years that the British Columbia Electric Railway Company is already planning to duplicate the first unit of the Bridge river hydro-electric power scheme of 10,000 horsepower within three years of the opening of the initial section which will cost $12,000,000. W. G. Murray, vice-president of the company, announced today.

ENTHUSIAST TELLS OF GREAT LIBRARY

DR. HENRY GUPPY, HEAD OF JOHN RYLANDS LIBRARY, MANCHESTER, VISITS

Thinks Adequate Index of Provincial Library's Remarkable Features Should Be Issued to World

"I love it, live for it, and I hope to die for it," in that strain Dr. Henry Guppy, head of the John Rylands Library in Manchester, England, spoke to The Colonist representative yesterday, before leaving for Seattle.

This wonderful building, one of the finest examples of modern Gothic architecture in the world, contains more than 3,000 books printed within the first fifty years of printing. When the library was opened in 1859, under Dr. Guppy's direction from the beginning, it was the gift of Mrs. Rylands in memory of her husband, the collection consisted of 70,000 printed books and about 100 manuscripts. After twenty-five years of existence it had grown to 300,000 books, and 10,000 manuscripts. Gordon Phillips has written of the library, "Geographically it is in Manchester, but in the realm of ideas it belongs to the world."

An Austrian scholar has said of it, "This library has in twenty years taken rank with such world-famous libraries as the Bibliothque Nationale, The Vatican, and the Royal Libraries of Vienna and Munich."

The association of Dr. Guppy with the library, of which he has written with affection and reverence, covers a period of remarkable progress in library matters, and the reason of his visit to Victoria arose from attendance at the recent conference of the American Library Association. This gave him an opportunity to come to this coast, and to carry on a series of lectures in the United States which will occupy him until December 1.

He has been greatly impressed with the progress of library work on this continent, on experiments which have been made ahead of European experience, and the excellent university libraries of the west, and made in taking books to the peasantry.

Mr. Guppy marvels at the progress made with the splendid collection of the Provincial Library here in view of "inadequate staff and inadequate financial means."

"It seems to be," he said, "the duty of the Government to advance the necessary funds to permit an index to be prepared, so that students may know what you have here."

Five Men Thought Dead In Burning Train Wreck

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—Five men are believed to have met death in the burning of two railway freight cars, carrying a rear-end collision today of two C.N.R. freight trains near Parlane, Ont., 136 miles east of Winnipeg.

All were stockmen travelling East on a mixed freight and stock train. Eight stockmen were on the train when it left here Wednesday night, but only three had been accounted for early this evening. Wm. Moffatt, of Centralia, Ont., is known to be dead. Four others supposed to have been on the cars are unaccounted for.

Quarter-Million-Gallon Whisky Seizure Made

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Two hundred and fifty thousand gallons of whisky, the largest seizure ever made in this country, was taken over by prohibition agents today, when agents in charge of the Keat warehouse in Brooklyn, the largest bonded warehouse in the United States, Chester P. Miller, district prohibition administrator, placed the minimum value of the whisky at $4,000,000.

Premier Oliver Leaves Kootenay for Coast

TO HALT FRANC'S EFFORT NOW

Despite Attempts of the Bank of France to Put on Brakes It Continues to Rise With Inconvenient Speed

PRESENT PRICE HIGHER THAN FOR LONG TIME

Market Out of Control—French Manufacturers Producing for Export Are Embarrassed by Increase

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Efforts by the Bank of France to put the brakes on the rapid rise in the franc, which has been going on for several weeks, have failed to halt the bull movement, and the franc today reached the highest level in many months, when it closed on the Bourse at 25.63 to the dollar and 143.65 to the pound.

The franc is now thought by experts to be very near its actual present value, while it is far above the rate at which French industries bought a great deal of British raw material. If the present rate holds, it may be possible for the manufacturers to work up the material and export it at small loss, experts say; but if the currency goes much higher the export trade will suffer.

The Bank of France has been buying pounds and dollars on every point for more than a month to try and steady the exchange market, so as to give time for industries to turn around.

Greater gambling in the eventual revaluation of the franc are too numerous, however, and the market is still out of control.

London Is Stirred By Brunner Killing Of Self and Wife

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Society and bill business circles have been stirred by the killing of Roscoe Brunner, former chairman of Brunner, Mond & Co., Ltd., and his wife, which occurred Wednesday night at a small cottage at Southampton.

The tragedy is being made a sensation in the London newspapers, which do not hesitate to assume that Brunner, shot his wife and then committed suicide.

Greater attention is attracted to the affair because of the connection of Brunner, shot his wife and then committed suicide.

Information of the largest industrial combine ever arranged in Great Britain, the sum of $13,650,000, in the neighborhood of $250,000,000.

Later Will Possible; This One Reads Like Elaborate Jocosity

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—The last will of the late Charles Miller, lawyer, racehorse owner, and mining magnate, dated 1921. The testamentary instrument, which is a masterpiece of wit and humor, is being read today, and this statement is qualified by the possibility that a later will may yet be discovered. Share in the Ontario Jockey Club, valued at around $25,000, will be distributed as follows:

One-third to Newton W. Russell, K.C., William E. Rance, K.C., and Rev. Benjamin Spence, of the Protestant Union.

Mr. Miller is said by The Telegram to own about $200,000 worth of stock in the O'Keefe Brewery. The will bequeaths all the brewery shares to Methodist ministers of the Toronto conference, who are members of the Orange Order.

Engineer's Dismissal Is Upheld by Court

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Decision has been handed down by the Exchequer Court of Canada dismissing the petition of right of Theodore Vallancourt, a former locomotive engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, who claimed from the King, through the Intercolonial and the Canadian National Railways, the sum of $13,650, alleging unjust and illegal dismissal. The case is of considerable interest to railroad people throughout Canada. In dismissing the petition Mr. Justice Audette found that insubordination and use of intoxicating liquors were proved and it was held to be a justifiable reason for dismissal of the petitioner, according to the evidence.

Four Killed, Two Hurt, In Oakland Explosion

OAKLAND, Nov. 4.—Four men were killed and two seriously injured in an explosion in the kerosene mixing house at the Hercules Powder Co. at Pinole, today. The dead: Harry Hilford, Elmer Lehmann, John Francis, Frank Peters. William McConnell and Albert Sarrara are the injured men. They were rushed to a hospital in Richmond, ten miles distant.

Supreme Court Quashes Deportation Appeal

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4.—On motion of the Crown, the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa today quashed the appeal of Jungo Lee on the ground that it had no jurisdiction to hear it. It was learned here.

The court has held that the habeas corpus proceedings to liberate Jungo Lee from custody of the Immigration authorities, who proposed to deport him this morning following conviction under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, are of a criminal and not a civil nature, and that in consequence there is no appeal.

COAL STRIKE END MAY COME TODAY

It Is Talked of, But in View of Many Previous Hitches, So Speedy an End Is Hardly Looked for

SITUATION UNDERGOES CHANGE SAYS OFFICIAL

Miners' Bad Position in Face of Increased Numbers Returning to Work Is Recognized by Delegates

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Peace in the coal fields is in sight. It is distinctly nearer through the mediation of the council of the Trades Union Congress, various reports of less secret conferences held between the interested parties the last few days.

A settlement of the long protracted strike, now in its fourth month, is talked of for tomorrow, but in view of the many previous hitches, such a speedy end is hardly looked for.

A prominent delegate, leaving a secret conference of the miners' officials this afternoon, declared there had been a complete change in the situation. The delegates were hopeful of peace. The miners' delegate conference had to decide the crucial question as to whether to continue resistance or peace. The delegates of the Union Congress, it is understood, that the debate was remarkably frank, and that the miners' bad position, in the face of increased numbers of men returning to work, was fully recognized.

The conference was adjourned until tomorrow. All seemed to depend on whether the Trades Union Congress can get from the Government an assurance of legislative action to safeguard broad national principles.

"SHOP IN VICTORIA" RENDERED EASIER

EQUIPMENT & NANAIMO RAILWAY WILL FURNISH UP-ISLANDERS WITH SIX HOURS IN TOWN

Restoration of Daily Train Service in and Out of Port Alberni to Parksville Is Also Planned

The Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway plans to offer to the people in the southern part of Vancouver Island an opportunity to "shop in Victoria." It is planning to commence an experiment, dating from November 20, by which nearly six hours will be available in this city for up-Island people who wish to transact business here, and return the same day.

Lack of such facility has been criticized in the past, and representations made to the company to provide some means by which the customer could stay in town long enough to visit the stores, and carry out necessary duties. To give effect to the proposal, Mr. H. H. Gale, president of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway, says it is planned to advance the morning train from Wellington so that it will reach here at 10:50 a.m., instead of noon. The departure of the afternoon train, which now leaves at 3 o'clock, will be delayed until 4:55 o'clock, so that the outgoing train will leave just before the down train arrives at 5 o'clock at the Store Street depot.

There will be two daily sailings from Vancouver to Nanaimo, connection being made in keeping with the revised schedule, and enabling the carrying out of promises made to the Nanaimo Board of Trade for increased service in the winter months.

It has been decided to restore the daily trains in and out of Port Alberni from Parksville daily except on Sundays, the sum of $13,650, alleging unjust and illegal dismissal. The case is of considerable interest to railroad people throughout Canada. In dismissing the petition Mr. Justice Audette found that insubordination and use of intoxicating liquors were proved and it was held to be a justifiable reason for dismissal of the petitioner, according to the evidence.

Effort to Float Tanker Meets Little Success

SAN PEDRO, Nov. 4.—Efforts to float the Associated Oil tanker Solano, which went aground in the fog last night, midway between Point Arguello and Point Sal, 140 miles north of here, were being made at high tide tonight, but with little chance of success.

Only the oil in the forward tanks of the Solano was pumped out today in an attempt made to save as much of the 47,000-barrel cargo as possible.

Radio messages from the Solano tonight said that it had been determined that the tanker was not on a sandbar, but was stuck on a mud flat, but was fast in the sand.

QUEEN ARRIVES IN VANCOUVER TODAY

PROGRAMME ANNOUNCED IS TO BE CARRIED OUT AT HOUSES ALREADY STATED

Lieutenant-Governor and Public Representative Will Welcome Royal Party

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4.—Apprehension of Vancouver civic authorities and those invited to meet Marie Queen of Rumania, at the two functions arranged in her honor for tomorrow, that arrangements for her arrival would be disrupted owing to her arrival several hours behind schedule at Seattle, was cleared away this evening following receipt of a telegram from the royal party to the effect that her special train would be here at noon, as originally planned.

The train will leave Seattle at 4 a.m. tomorrow, according to the telegram, and arrive at Ilwaco, Washington, just south of the Canadian boundary, at 10 a.m. After siding the Peace Arch, erected on the international border near Blaine, she and her entourage will continue their trip into British Columbia, either by train or by automobile over the Pacific Highway.

Will Be Met by Representatives

The royal party will be greeted here by Hon. H. H. Gale, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia; Hon. William Sloan, Acting Premier; Mayor L. D. Taylor and members of the City Council, and other representatives of various organizations or personal acquaintances of Queen Marie. She will be taken for a motor tour of the city before attending an informal luncheon at the Hotel Vancouver, at which members of the welcoming party will be present. Later in the afternoon, the Women's Canadian Club will hold a reception in honor of her Majesty and Princess Ileana. For the evening a formal banquet will be followed by a ball, is scheduled.

Queen Marie is expected to leave Vancouver, the farthest west of her visit to this continent, at midnight, commencing her homeward journey from Seattle next day.

Banquet and Dance

Mayor Taylor will escort the Queen into the ballroom of the Hotel Vancouver, where the banquet will be held. Prince Nicholas will escort Miss Mackenzie, and Princess Ileana will be accompanied by either Mr. Sloan, representing the Provincial Government, or Hon. J. H. King, representing the Federal Government.

Immediately following dinner, the Queen will be requested to move to the blue room, where a dais has been erected. Here the dinner guests will be presented. A dance will be later held in the oval room for those who wish to enjoy this form of pleasure. It is uncertain whether the Queen will be present at this function, but Continued on Page 2

CRANBROOK, B.C., Nov. 4.—At an executive session of the Conservative of the East Kootenay Federal riding it was decided that there shall be no Conservative opposition to the reelection of Dr. King as cabinet minister from this riding, and his election by acclamation is thereby assured.

This is the first time in the political experience of Dr. King in this riding, extending over twenty years, that he has been given an acclamation.

Mrs. A. V. Brown Drops Dead in Waiting Crowd

SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—While waiting with a crowd of women to see Queen Marie of Rumania enter the Seattle home of her host, Samuel Hill, Mrs. Hortense Brown, wife of A. V. Brown, general manager of the Northern Pacific Railway here, dropped dead on a sidewalk this afternoon. The Queen had not arrived. Mrs. Brown was fifty-two years of age today, and had walked three blocks to the Hill mansion from her home.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Sir Thomas Beecham, well-known conductor and impresario, thinks that the musical future of England is so black that the only thing left for musicians to do is to get out.

Only Two Men Are Left In Homes of Settlement After Flooding of Mine

Village at North Lake Finds Itself Robbed of Nearly Every Man by Cave-In of Mine Roof and Collapse of Swamp Land—For but One Miner Is There Any Possible Hope

One Hundred and Sixty Children Are Orphaned by Disaster at Iron Mine

ISHPEMING, Mich., Nov. 4.—The little settlement of North Lake, which grew around the development of the Barnes-Hecker iron mine, eight miles from here, was robbed of nearly every man by the cave-in at the shaft yesterday, which took fifty-one lives.

Today, as the difficult work of attending recovery of the dead proceeded, there were only two men residents there to help. The others lay either in a morgue or in the workings, where they were caught by the collapse of swamp land and the consequent flooding of the mine.

The disaster left 160 orphans. The community school closed today when only six of its thirty-two pupils came to classes.

A Night of Waiting

A crowd of women and children, most of them widows and orphans of the victims, kept vigil throughout the night about the great gaping mud pit which marked the grave of the fifty-one miners entrapped in the Barnes-Hecker iron mines, near here, yesterday when the bottom of a swamp over the shaft gave way, flooding the workings.

Pure and the most unaccounting for and believed drowned or suffocated, were married and all except a few leave children.

It is hard to believe and in company sharks on the mine surface the little groups presented a pathetic picture. They refused to leave the scene for any rest and spent the night miserably praying and howling about the workmen who were busy draining the shaft. Mine officials and employees served coffee and lunch to the groups and administered what little comfort they could.

One May Escape

ISHPEMING, Mich., Nov. 4.—Entombed in a pump house, 1,000 feet below the earth's surface and beneath into British Columbia, and beneath muck that wrecked the Barnes-Hecker Mine yesterday, one of the fifty-one miners who were caught in the cave-in may be alive. While all hope for the safety of the other fifty was abandoned today, engineers expressed the opinion that the man in the concrete "coffin" at the bottom of the shaft is alive, provided that the pipe lines that carry air from the surface were not broken.

The only home in which a spark of hope exists is that of Peter Duroche, the pumpman.

If Duroche is alive it may take days to reach him, as rescue workers would still have to dig through hundreds of feet of mud and clay to reach him.

Mrs. McPherson Asks for Immediate Trial of Case

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—A demand for immediate trial will be made by Almesa Remple McPherson, and her mother and co-defendant, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, on charges of criminal conspiracy, their attorney, W. I. Gilbert, said tonight, at the same time denying that it was their intention to ask a change of venue.

The prospect for bringing the charges before a superior court jury soon also brightened with the declaration of the prosecution, now engaged in drawing up information against the evangelist, her mother and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Selaff, that the district attorney's office will be ready for the trial within fifteen days.

Due to the working of the legal machinery, it was said, however, that it might be early in January before the trial can open.

AUTOMOBILE LIENS 'TROUBLE LAW-MAKERS'

Attorney-General Manson Will Introduce Amendments to Statutes Covering This Matter

The innovations of modern life bring with them their perplexities on the part of law makers to cope with the altered conditions that arise with each of these. In this respect the automobile, it would appear, carries more than its proper share of complications as far as laws are concerned.

Traffic rules are always a subject for discussion when legislators convene, but these are not the only troubles that arise in connection with the use of automobiles.

Hon. A. M. Manson, Attorney-General of the Province, finds that the modern means of transportation carries with it complications relative to liens that the present statutes are not framed to cover adequately. It is therefore assured that amendments with respect to this aspect of the laws of the Province will be introduced into the Legislature by Mr. Manson at this coming session.

The extreme mobility of automobiles creates the great trouble respecting clear titles to these vehicles. It has been found in experience that autos covered by liens in one city not infrequently find their way without much trouble to another city and, under false pretence with respect to the liens that exist, are sold and give rise to endless trouble later on.

The matter is a difficult one to deal with, Mr. Manson admits, but he feels that it is essential that something be done to overcome the uncertainty that may exist with respect to the existence of liens on the cars which are by no means an uncommon occurrence. He is grappling with the matter now in an endeavor to introduce legislation that may be acceptable in this respect when the Legislature assembles.

VALHALLA COMPANY IS COMPENSATED FOR CANCELLATION OF SALE

Hon. T. D. Pattullo announces that a settlement of the dispute relative to the Valhalla Cemetery site at Point Grey has been reached. The company which had in contemplation the purchase of the site has been returned the money which was given the department on deposit and in addition has been paid $12,500 by way of compensation.

The intention of the department is to offer Point Grey the site at the same price as was to have been paid by the Valhalla Company. This will allow the municipality to carry out its proposition turning the site into a golf course as was represented to be the wish of the Point Grey Council in the matter.

If this offer is not taken advantage of by the Government will offer the land in question for competitive sale, with the price at which it was offered to the Valhalla Company as the upper price which the Government will hold the land at.

It is hoped that the Princess and her brother will be.

QUEEN MARIE'S TRAIN, AT SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—With her party upset by a dispute among the guiding heads of her tour, Queen Marie arrived in Seattle today to find the city equally disturbed because her late arrival had forced the crowding of a day-long programme into a few hours.

The shortened reception and entertainment scheduled went through, however, with Governor Hartley and Mayor B. K. Landes inaugurating it with greetings on behalf of the state and city.

The late arrival here was caused by the Queen herself, who directed that her train be held nearly an hour at Longview early this morning, while she made a before-breakfast inspection of a lumber mill there.

Differences between Samuel Hill, host to Her Majesty, whose incomplete museum of fine arts at Maryhill was dedicated by her yesterday, and Colonel John H. Carroll, who is in charge of the tour, and Major Stanley Washburn, special aide to the Queen, were patched up to a degree before the train pulled into Seattle.

The trouble began at Portland last night in the Queen's private box at a horse show, when Mr. Hill was said to have upbraided Major Washburn for failing to arrange for a seat for Governor Pierce, of Oregon, in the Queen's car on the motor trip from Maryhill to Portland. Washburn explained that the seat had been apportioned according to the usual plans and that none remained for the Governor.

With Queen Marie and her party looking on, Mr. Hill is said to have told Major Washburn that the latter would "take orders from me," and that he would "order" Washburn if he disobeyed. Carroll and Washburn then rose from their seats, informed the Queen that they could no longer remain with Mr. Hill present, and left. Later none of the principals would discuss the affair, which was conducted so quietly that few persons knew of it.

Colonel Carroll and Mr. Hill lunched together on the train today in an effort to smooth over the difficulties, but Major Washburn did not join them. Mr. Hill was said to have threatened to put Washburn off the train, but he still was with the party tonight. Washburn has promised Colonel Carroll to remain for a time, at least. Although Mr. Hill said he did not know how long he would remain on the train, others said he would leave it when Seattle is reached again on the return from Vancouver on Sunday.

Compliments Fly

Colonel Carroll and Mr. Hill accompanied Queen Marie to the Business and Professional Women's Club tonight, but Major Washburn remained on the train. In a statement tonight referring to Mr. Hill's reported threat to slap Major Washburn's face and to put him off the train, Colonel Carroll said: "I am very much surprised that a guest of the Queen should make such a declaration as that attributed to Mr. Hill, namely, that he would slap Major Washburn's face. Her Majesty selected Major Washburn for her aide before coming to America, as she had found him a loyal friend during the late war."

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically, from gas, nervousness and indigestion, have been dissatisfied with the usual laxative and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants. Instead, following the advice as often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Epsom's Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomachs no longer trouble them. They enjoy much better health. Those who use Epsom's Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know Epsom's Magnesia is a safe and food corrective, which can be obtained from any drug store, and is perfectly new, without the slightest hint of discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Epsom's Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Well-Known Beauties Will Tour Country

CANADA'S two internationally known beauties, Jean Ford Tolmie, "Miss Toronto," awarded a special cup at Atlantic City this September, and Pat O'Shea, "Miss Winnipeg," one of the three winners at the international competition in Galveston, Texas, photographed as they left the North Toronto Station on the first lap of a trip which will take them to every Canadian city of importance from Victoria to Halifax. They have joined "Capt. Plunkett's Revue of 1926," a new organization sent on tour by the well-known Canadian producer, which will travel over 7,000 miles on the Canadian Pacific Railway. With the two beauties is Jeanette Carrette, a diminutive danseuse, who is accompanied by a special school teacher throughout the trip. The company will be on tour till late in the coming Spring, spending all in all approximately six months on the C.P.R.

"The Khan" Dies at Home in Rockton at Age of Seventy-One

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 4.—Robert Kirkland Kernighan, "The Khan," author and poet, died this morning at his home in Rockton after an illness of several months in the seventy-second year of his life.

Kernighan was born at Rushdale Farm, made famous in his verse, in 1857. He received a public school education and when a young man joined the staff of The Hamilton Spectator as a local editor. Later, he went west to Winnipeg, where, for some time he was editor of The Winnipeg Sun. Writing under the name of "The Khan" and "Old Twilight," his verse includes "Men of the Northern Zone," which was published separately and set to music; "Canadian First," the "Frontier Way," "Ya Houk," "When Daddy Comes Home With His Wares," and many other poems, which were included in a volume entitled "The Khan's Canticles" and published in 1924. Several other volumes have since been published. In addition to following his literary pursuits, "The Khan" was engaged in farming.

Subsidies Mark of Decline of Kultur

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—Indications that the traditions of kultur are not being maintained under the republic are seen in the fact the cities and states this season have been forced to subsidize municipal and state operas and theatres to the extent of approximately $10,000,000.

Berlin alone spends about $1,000,000 a season to disseminate kultur from the stage. Cologne spends $500,000; Dusseldorf $430,000; Dresden and Munich $415,000 each. Directors of the Frankfurt Opera say they cannot pay expenses beyond Christmas time because the city council just recently looped off $100,000 from the $400,000 operating budget. Civic operas were subsidized under the monarchy, but not to the extent they are today.

HONEY EXHIBIT PLANNED AT SHOW

Additional Attraction Assured for Potato, Seed and Bulb Exhibition Shortly

An exhibit of the Department of Agriculture at the forthcoming potato, bulb and seed show at the Armories on November 24-27, will be of much interest to the visitors who are interested in honey production. It will consist of a fully equipped model apiary, including hives, honey extractor, honey house, hive on scales, etc., illustrating the arrangement and working of a complete and up-to-date apiary.

In addition to this exhibit there will be full-sized hives on show that are recommended by the department, and also sample glass jars of many varieties of honey obtained from districts nearly all over the Province, by which the variation in the colors of the honey gathered from the different nectar-producing plants of British Columbia can be clearly seen.

The season just passed has not been as good for honey production in the Province as was anticipated in the Spring. All the estimated crop reports are not in yet, but it is expected that the total production for the year will be close to 800,000 lbs., which figure has not been reached before.

The beeswax produced in 1926 will probably be around 10,000 lbs. The price of beeswax has been rising during the last few years, as the demand is continually increasing.

A new industry is being started in the Province shortly for making beeswax into comb foundation. This will be good news for the honey producers as they will be able to have their spare wax made up into foundation in British Columbia instead of having to send it to either Ontario or the United States for this purpose as at present.

The number of commercial honey producers in the Province is steadily increasing. An experienced beekeeper from Ontario arrived this Fall. He is starting up in the interior in quite a large way, and has selected one of the best locations, where he expects to make a commencement with 100 colonies of bees next Spring.Surgeon Who First Made Operation for Appendicitis Dies

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 4.—Dr. John Wishart, surgeon of international repute and credited with having performed the first modern operation for appendicitis, died here today following a lengthy illness. He was born near Guelph, Ontario, and began practice in London more than fifty years ago.

NO BLUE SKY LAW IS IN VIEW FOR PROVINCEAttorney-General Manson Will Not Attempt This Class of Legislation for British Columbia

The report that the Attorney-General of the Province will, at the approaching session of the legislature attempt to put on the statute books "blue sky legislation with respect to lotteries that may be offered in British Columbia is unfounded. This impression appears to have got abroad in view of the fact that there is to be some legislation which Hon. Mr. Manson deems essential in the interests of the public, to come before the members for endorsement.

What is known, however, as "blue sky" laws will not be attempted following the experience of some of the Prairie Provinces where something of this kind was tried and on appeal to the courts found to be outside the jurisdiction of the Province.

Mr. Manson feels that in the matter of mining company flotations the Province is being well protected by the action of the Department of Mines in intervening to protect investors whenever it was found that unscrupulous liberty was being taken by promoters.

There are, however, some classes of organizations that have been seeking to carry on in the Province which have been found to be rather questionable in their operations. In some instances the liberty has been taken to announce that the organizations are under Government inspection, when this is not the case.

While not wanting in any way to restrict anyone in the Province from carrying on legitimate business, nor desiring to dictate to investors as to how they shall use their money, the Attorney-General is prepared to deal with questionable classes of flotations by legislation that will be brought down in the Legislature at the next sitting.

OAK BAY WILL OPEN HIGHWAY QUESTIONWill Interview Government With Regard to Beach Drive—Special Meeting Next Week

The Oak Bay Council will shortly appoint a committee to interview the Provincial Government with a view to having Beach Drive placed in the category of a secondary highway. For some years past residents of the municipality have rendered complaints about the absence of a pathway, and at last night's meeting, when further complaints were heard, the governing body decided to bring the issue to a head by appointing a committee to seek the Provincial authorities to adopt the above-mentioned course and to seek some agreement with regard to the payment for a footpath.

The traffic byway which has been before the Council for several meetings will be finally disposed of next Wednesday night, when a special meeting of the Council will be held. The by-law calls for the governing of traffic on several streets in the municipality.

A letter from Mr. John Dean, suggesting that all the municipal councils get together and form a committee to ask the Provincial Government to give power to alter the penalty in regard to delinquent taxpayers and make the penalty rate one per cent a month instead of fifteen, was referred to the finance committee for consideration. The Council refused point blank to allow the Jubilee Hospital further time in notifying the municipality of indigent patients. The statute calls for notification within seven days, and the Council will ask that this be complied with.

SIR H. W. THORNTON MAKES LIBERAL GIFTUNABLE TO ATTEND PRESS CLUB BALL TONIGHT, SENDS $25 CHEQUE*Donation to Assist General Proceeds in Aid of Solarium Cripples' Christmas Fund

Actions speak louder than words, and the Victoria Press Club had very tangible evidence of this yesterday in the receipt of a quite unsolicited cheque for $25 from Sir Henry Thornton for the Solarium Cripples' Christmas fund, in aid of which the dance is being held this evening at the Empress Hotel. Sir Henry and Lady Thornton were invited to attend the ball, but as they will not arrive here until tomorrow morning, wrote that they would be unable to be present, but enclosed this generous gift "as a small contribution towards the Christmas fund for crippled children."

"The cause to which the funds raised by the ball are to be devoted has my sympathy, and I wish you every success in your endeavor," Sir Henry wrote in his accompanying letter.

The ball tonight bids fair to rival any of its predecessors in gaiety and the characteristic happy atmosphere. The decorations will have novelty, associated, of course, with the Guy Fawkes anniversary. Very special attention was given to the make-up of the dance programme, and Charlie Hunt's eight-piece orchestra has rehearsed several completely new selections for the occasion, which are guaranteed to make a hit with everyone. Supper will be served in the dining-room from eleven o'clock to midnight, and on this the Empress management is expending special care, too.

Appeal From Sentence Results in Increase

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4.—James Deem not only lost out on his appeal on a liquor conviction, but received a heavier sentence before Mr. Justice Grant in County Court Thursday afternoon.

Deem was charged in the lower court with selling intoxicating liquor on the eve of September 14, and sentenced by Magistrate Pindley October 7, to pay a fine of $500, or in default, serve three months imprisonment. He appealed against that conviction and attempted to prove an alibi by the evidence of two men who swore that at the time of the sale he was with them reading election results. The judge, however, considered the evidence of the Crown too strong to be shaken and dismissed the appeal, confirming the fine of $500, but making the alternative four months imprisonment instead of three months.

FREE STATE "ENVOYS"

In Premier Herzog's plea for international recognition of the "independent status" of South Africa he is receiving support from the Irish Free State. The Free State has taken this attitude because there will be a general election in that country next year and the Government there wants to show that the principles of Sinn Féin have not been abandoned. The Constitution of the Free State is identical with that of Canada. In order to make certain of that identity it is noteworthy that as soon as the Canadian Government established its right to appoint a diplomatic representative to Washington the Free State promptly asserted a similar right. It did more, because it sent its Minister to Washington and Canada has not yet chosen to exert this power.

At Geneva recently the Irish Free State applied for a seat on the Council of the League of Nations. This was done for the purpose of attempting to show that the Irish "Dominion" is immune from British influence. Now again at the Imperial Conference the Irish Free State is supporting the claim of Premier Herzog for international recognition of an "independent status," and thereby chasing a constitutional rainbow which will undoubtedly obscure more important issues. Indeed it is the raising of this question in London that may tend to render the discussions of the Imperial Conference largely nugatory, unless a via media can be found. Premier Herzog in his plea has the support of Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, the Irish Free State's Minister for External Affairs, and the fact that all the later sessions of the Imperial Conference are being held in camera would suggest that the problem is being debated vigorously. Ireland and South Africa want the power to make their own treaties of all kinds, not only commercial treaties which they now have the power to make. The question that has arisen is one of the complexities of which have long been recognized. From the standpoint of the Irish Free State there is some interesting comment by the London Times which says:

The problem of treaty-making has many ramifications, and one of the most important is the question of the Free State's representatives in foreign countries. The Free State has its own Minister in Washington, where it is represented, in common with the other Dominions, by the British Ambassador. In Paris, Brussels and certain other foreign cities, however, the Free State has "representatives," who in the old days of the "Irish Republic" assumed the fullest, ambassadorial status, although they never were recognized by the Governments to which they attached themselves. Since the establishment of the Free State the functions of these "representatives" have been defined so loosely that considerable irritation has been caused. They have no diplomatic status, yet they refuse to be content with that of mere "commercial envoys," with the result that their relations with the British Embassies in some cases are extremely delicate. Manifestly the Free State cannot afford to establish a complete diplomatic and consular service; and, even if it could, it would be impossible to make the attempt. The position ought to be regulated as soon as possible, as the present system of hybrid representatives is most unsatisfactory.

PROTECTING INVESTORS

We congratulate ourselves from time to time on the large and increasing number of new companies that are incorporated provincially and regard them as an evidence of growing prosperity. What is not done by the Government is the putting into force of a sufficiently close investigation as to the bona fides of firms which seek incorporation. The result is and has been that often stock in such ventures is legitimately sold in the Province, because incorporation is granted, and the money "invested" is lost. The people have a right to expect a measure of protection in the matter of all stock-selling ventures which receive the sanction of Provincial law. We are not sure at all that where a definite risk is attached to investment, and by that we mean a risk beyond the ordinary ups and downs of economic conditions and industrial development, the Government should not require a bond from companies which seek to do business in British Columbia.

Attorney-General Manson has announced that he is devising legislation to safeguard investors. It is legislation that is needed for many of our people have been gambling in stocks from which there is the poorest of possible hope of a return on the money they have invested. Because of this money has been diverted from legitimate channels of development and the Province has suffered in consequence. It is in the interest of British Columbia that it should have safeguarding legislation to protect the people against fraud and failure as far as humanly possible. One item of this legislation might well be a restriction on the number of bond houses which can operate in the Province, and by this we mean that no bond house should be allowed incorporation unless it is able to give definite security of its bona fides. The main reform needed, however, is that governing the terms under which stock-selling companies are permitted incorporation. No doubt the Attorney-General has definite proposals in this regard. They will be watched with interest, and whatever they are they should prove salutary.

CANADA'S RESOURCES

Mr. J. Bruce Walker, the Canadian Director of European Emigration, has been telling Londoners something of the resources of the Dominion. After premising that the economics of Canada are only known to a comparatively limited degree, he said every attempt to penetrate into the unknown had resulted in discoveries of incalculable wealth. The potentialities of the country he describes as beyond the dreams of avarice. The Prairie Provinces he says have over 300,000,000 acres of arable land and of these only some 60,000,000 are in actual occupation while not more than 40,000,000 to 45,000,000 acres are producing grain crops of any kind. The total agricultural production of the Dominion he estimates at two billion dollars a year, and he told his British hearers that of the entire Canadian cereal exports Great Britain is the principal purchaser, taking 198,402,000 bushels or about 70 per cent. The manufactured products of Canada's mines, he says, exceed in value the production of grain and wheat. This country is the greatest producer of newsprint in the world. Canada produces 90 per cent of the cobalt, 88 per cent of the asbestos and 80 per cent of the nickel of the world. She is the third greatest gold producer and there is marvelous wealth in the water power of the Dominion.

One of the ideas which obsess mankind is that sleep is a necessity. Professor Arthur Thompson writing in The Empire Review says that although we spend a large fraction of our lives in sleep we are far from understanding what it precisely means, either for ourselves or for animals. "Sleep," he says, "is part of an established rhythm, a state of partial fatigue in the higher nerve centres, during which recuperation occurs, probably associated with the removal of solid waste-products or toxins. It is 'natural,' we say, that rest should alternate with activity. Yet, as we repeat this, the difficulty arises in our mind that many animals—most animals indeed—do not sleep at all; that many parts of our body such as heart and lungs, food-canal and kidneys, go on doing their work as we sleep; that our spinal cord must be a very light sleeper, and that the 'breathing-centre' in our medulla does not seem to need a rest all the days of our life. The necessity for rest after work does not carry us far towards an understanding of sleep."

The London Sunday Express detects a reaction in the masculine mind against the modern fashions of women. It says: "We detect a reaction against the painted face. It is a masculine reaction. Men are as weary of the standardized mouth as they are of the standardized female eyebrow and the standardized female crop. They sigh for a glimpse of natural lips, natural cheeks and natural eyelashes. They wish that Britannia would rule out the permanent wave which makes every woman look like a waxwork hair-dresser's dummy. Even the sight of a schoolgirl's pigtail relieves the monotony of the feminine landscape. And a plump maiden exhilarates the eye that is sated by an eternal procession of underfed skeletons."

The Turkish Government, in its modernization of Turkey, has broken through yet another of the Moslem laws, that which permits every Moslem to have four wives. Hereafter monogamy is imposed on the Turks and the Imam can no longer officiate at marriages which now must be performed by a "marriage clerk." Under the old law a girl of nine could marry with her parents' consent. The new law prescribes the minimum age as seventeen for a girl and eighteen for a man.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

The Honorable Premier of the Province has been visiting the Okanagan district and addressing the fruit-growers of that promising and progressive district. The address which the Premier delivered to the growers of the apples which have made British Columbia famous was not directly of a political character, but we surmise that it was intended to have some indirect political effect.

All the apples that are grown in the Okanagan District are not marketable. Not even all the renowned McIntosh Red apples are marketable. There are a considerable number of "scrubs" produced by even the healthiest of apple trees. These "scrubs" or "culls" represent just what many apples wanted. Like the apple "scrubs" and the "culls" produced in considerable abundance in Saanich and the other districts surrounding Victoria, they lie upon the ground and rot.

Hitherto the Honorable the Premier, if we have correctly interpreted his views and his attitude, has sternly set his face against the sale of cider—honest and straightforward cider without any non-alcoholic-content nonsense about it—in the Government liquor storehouses. Well, the Honorable the Premier has revised his views. He occasionally subjects his views to a process of revision when it appears politically or economically expedient to do so. Possibly he has been recalling the days of his youth in England and certain draughts of the cider his forefathers used to make—the sparkling, clear and exhilarating liquor that was drunk in the large quantities by the yeomen and the laborers in the harvest fields of the English counties. Those strong and sturdy men and those ruddy-faced lasses did not seem to be any the worse, physically, mentally or morally, as a result of their indulgence in the drink which at one time was as famous in the Old Country as the McIntosh Red apple is today in the Okanagan District and elsewhere.

The Honorable the Premier, of course, deems it necessary that he should attempt to justify his change of attitude. He says he is no advocate of the use of alcoholic liquor as a beverage. In that respect his position is just like our own position. But in another respect his position is distinctly different from our position. He is a total abstainer from the use of alcoholic liquor. He is in a position to drink a reasonable amount of alcoholic liquor if he desires to do it. We abstain from the use of alcoholic liquor because certain circumstances compel us to do it. One of the circumstances is the price charged by the Government for the liquor it purveys over the counters of its liquor stores.

However, while the Honorable the Premier is no advocate of the use of alcoholic beverages, he is willing to make concessions to the weakness of his less ascetic and less abstemious contemporaries. He says if the fruit-growers of the Okanagan will make a wholesome cider he will see that it is placed upon the market through his liquor stores. He says there is no reason why cider should not be as readily obtainable as loganberry wine. Loganberry wine has made Saanich famous. Pure, sparkling and stimulating cider may become as famous as McIntosh Red apples. Loganberry wine has increased the prosperity of Saanich. Cider may add immeasurably to the prosperity not only of the Okanagan District but to the prosperity of many other parts of British Columbia. A large quantity of material which hitherto has been wasted will be turned to profitable account. The consumption of home products will be stimulated. The use of imported liquors will be diminished, and hundreds of thousands of dollars which were formerly sent out of the country for distribution will be distributed amongst the people of the country. The manufacture and sale of cider should also prove a great stimulant to the somewhat languishing fruit-growing industry of this section of British Columbia.

We have often wondered why cider was not manufactured in British Columbia—and our wonder grew when we travelled through the surrounding districts and saw the number of apples that were left to waste upon the trees and upon the ground under the trees—for we have tasted cider, and know that it is good, provided it is real cider. Strange to say, the best cider we ever tasted was made and barreled upon a farm in the Province of Ontario. But that was in the old days when there was an abundance of talk about temperance and no talk whatever about prohibition. The barrel of cider which we tapped surreptitiously was intended for the private consumption of the family of the Ontario farmer during the winter when we bored a hole in the barrel and sucked the nectar through a straw. That cider was a fine and stimulating liquor, but we were sufficiently conscientious and temperate to be very careful never to partake too freely of it. It imparted a golden glow to the system. We can testify to the fact that it never did us any harm; but we often have wondered since whether the aperture we bored in the cask did not spoil the brew for the farmer and his family.

The announcement of the Honorable the Premier recalled to our mind delectable memories of that barrel of cider, and we have decided in our mind that if the cider that is put upon the markets of British Columbia is up to that memorable standard, we shall have our share of it whatever the price fixed by the insatiable liquor vendors.

Local Veteran Writes Views on Unity

An article on unity of veteran organizations appears in The Legionary, the organ of the Canadian Legion, by Mr. H. W. Hart, of this city, with a comment by the editor. It says: "Because, in the opinion of the Army and Navy veterans' convention, it is not advisable for that organization to become a part of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, the full measure of unity for which we are striving and hoping is postponed indefinitely. The writer is unable to agree with the arguments advanced in explanation of the decision to remain outside the union; but, because he fails to grasp what the Army and Navy veterans consider to be fundamental points of greater importance than the unity of all ex-service men, it does not detract from the force of his argument that the sincerity and loyalty of comrades who have not learned the lesson of unity exemplified by one combined body in which the part (the individual) is subservient to the whole (service to country and comrades)."

Advance is Made
When we are all prepared to accept the statement that "the whole is greater than its parts," we will have a finer conception of duty, and seek only to perform that duty faithfully and without thought of the advancement of individual organizations, branches or persons. No member of the Canadian Legion complains that he is not a member of the British Empire Service League, or that all members fully appreciate this self-evident fact, but all will admit that a great advance in the right direction has been made. A better feeling is apparent in the meetings; more toleration of other comrades' views is shown; the spirit of service has been strengthened.

How can recognition of the self-evident fact referred to be expedited both inside and outside the Canadian Legion? That is the important question this article endeavors to answer. In the first place the conscientious opinions of all comrades, no matter how widely they may differ, should be respected. In the second place, no pains should be spared to merge conflicting opinions into a settled conviction based on reason and the principle of the Golden Rule. The first thought, while undeniably right, is so often transgressed in the haste to reach the hastily ill-considered conclusions of any one of us may do much to defer the time when there will be complete understanding between all organizations and branches of organizations. The Canadian Legion is so young that some of the branches, established organizations, organizations find the new order of things somewhat strange, with recurring memories of past feuds causing embarrassment. He is in a position to add to tea must dissolve and mix before it sweetens the cup, so must the branches intermingle before the complete understanding can be reached and appreciated. The second thought deals with this phase of the situation, and the suggestions for creating a feeling of unity in the Canadian Legion are of more value if, in recognition of the fact that "the whole is greater than its parts," the Army and Navy Veterans and all other organizations outside the Canadian Legion were invited to participate.

The Local Situation
The following proposals are based upon conditions existing in Victoria, where two Canadian Legion branches and two branches of other organizations, each with canteen and club-room accommodation, exist within a radius of a quarter of a mile. In other parts of Canada, where conditions differ, necessary modifications would have to be made.

The essence of the idea is to "get together." The route to travel in the united meetings, social and sports highway. Once each month a meeting should be held for members of all associations and unattached men; the first hour devoted to short, snappy speeches by one member of each participating branch and organization on some live topic of interest to ex-service men, followed by a lecture from some outstanding man or woman in the community, or visitor. A monthly smoking concert for members of all associations and unattached men. An annual or semi-annual annual picnic, arranged by the combined Women's Auxiliaries, and an annual picnic and sports meeting. The various bodies should unite in a "big push" for some deserving local charity, thereby showing that we are not obsessed by our own affairs, but can spare a thought for the misfortunes of others. Club-rooms for the four bodies should be used in succession for combined indoor gatherings.

We are on the unity highway, which is a dangerous curve and a crooked road. The danger points are marked by warning signs, and when we reach the curves and crooked roads, unite associations and branches, take notice of the sign: "Stop! Look! Listen! The whole is greater than its part." Drop into low gear; drive cautiously; do not hasten pedestrians with mud, and do not smother them with dust. Courtesy and consideration make friends. If you can, give the other fellow a lift; he will appreciate it, and friendly relations will be established. The basis of unity is friendship.

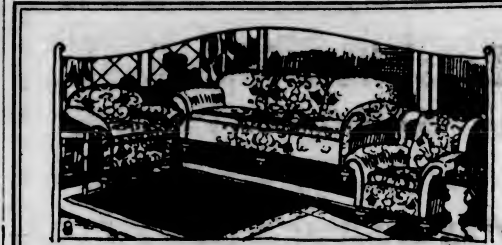

H. W. HART, Victoria, B.C., October 1, 1926.

Editorial Note
(Editor's Note.—The foregoing letter presents aspects of the unity question which are worthy of the consideration of all veterans. Mr. Hart mentions at the outset that "the full measure of unity for which we are striving and hoping is postponed indefinitely" because of the failure of the Army and Navy Veterans to become part of The Legion. It should be borne in mind, in this connection, that the degree of unity already attained, is far beyond the expectations of those who have sponsored

Quality That Will Return You Great Value—and Satisfaction

At this store the custom has always been to hold quality as the very first consideration—and by keeping selling expense at the lowest possible level we have been able to give the public more actual value for their money than any other home-furnishing store in British Columbia. It is this reputation for better selection, more appealing styles and better value that brings so many people to Weiler's.

WEILER'S Complete House Furnishers

Government Street Established 1852

Like British Columbia (so claimed to be) that such a state of affairs should not exist. The literature published in England by the Canadian Government and the Canadian Pacific R. Co. quotes every inducement offered to settlers to come to British Columbia and invest their money and take up land. It is taken for granted that roads are provided to all points. Are they? The road needed on the west side of Lake Shownigan is only about five miles in length and the cost but small, a few thousand dollars at the most. The writer has a knowledge of road construction and would gladly give his services, if required, to put the road through for the benefit of the district.

Royal Jubilee Hospital

Sir,—I have read with interest, as no doubt other readers have done, the statement of the chairman of the hospital upon the present financial conditions of the institution, which appears to be such as to call for assistance beyond that which is now available. I think it will be admitted by those who have been compelled to seek treatment in the hospital that the highest possible standard of scientific equipment as well as medical and surgical skill, has been attained within its walls, but science is progressive and it is necessary to march with this progress. Scientific equipment, however, involves enormous outlay which is in no way met by the payments of patients when they are discharged. It is observed in the statement that the hospital is caring for a number of "indigent chronic patients," but an active hospital, which exists for the immediate needs of the sick and disabled, would not appear to be quite the proper place for such cases.

Hallowe'en Tricks

Sir,—I enjoy seeing youngsters enjoy themselves, but when it comes to willful brigandage it looks as though something is wrong in the bringing up of the children. It is a common sight these days to see small gangs of youths and even young girls roaming our streets when they would be better under the care of their parents at home. On Saturday evening last somebody removed a perfectly unused wheelbarrow from my garage. As this was a sample it has placed me in an awkward position. Should this meet the attention of any person who may have seen it on an empty lot or otherwise, I should be glad of the information.

W. J. DANDHIDGE, 1834 Oak Bay Avenue, Victoria, B.C., November 3, 1926.

Road on West Side of Lake Shownigan

Sir,—What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Settlers and others on the east side of Lake Shownigan can, when they please, take a joy ride into Victoria or elsewhere by their own cars, but the poor settler on the west side of the lake has not that privilege but is "locked in" with no other outlet, except railroad with a limited service, and in stormy weather, since crossing the lake by small rowboat is out of the question, they have to subsist on inevitable and repulsive at home. Such a condition of affairs is a disgrace to any country.

Is British Columbia progressive? What are the settlers on the west side of the lake to do in case of sudden illness, needing immediate removal to the hospital? Even if the lake is navigable for small boats, invalids could not always be removed by boat for the trains. The result would be death in many instances.

I wonder if the Public Works Department would appreciate living under such conditions. Not much, I maintain for a progressive country.

SENSATIONAL MOVE EXPECTED IN EAST

CLEAN-UP OF HUGE DOPE RING CONTEMPLATED BY OTTAWA SAYS WINDSOR

Two Police Officers Under Detention—Arrest of Prominent Citizens May Be Made

WINDSOR, Nov. 4.—That a sensational clean-up of what is believed to be a huge dope ring is contemplated by Federal authorities, and may be even completed before morning was ascertained here tonight, when it was learned by Canadian Press that former Police Sergeant Meigs and his wife were being held in a Sandwich Jail and that Ernest Hall, also a former police officer, was being detained at Windsor. No charges had been laid up to midnight, but it was learned that their detention was ordered by Inspector Cowan, chief of the Narcotic Drugs Act enforcement. Rumors of a clean-up that would shake even political circles of the border have been circulating here for several days, and were given foundation this morning with the arrival of the Inspector and plain clothes officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Inspector Cowan this morning was retired, while the Inspector, merely stating that his trip had to do with "routine business." However, throughout the day he remained at a local hotel, where he received various police officials from time to time, including Inspector Loughrey, of the Provincial Police and Crown Attorney James Allan.

Something in the Wind

When located tonight, one admitted that there was "something doing." Just what this "something" meant is a matter for conjecture, although hints were dropped from those who had been in touch with the Inspector that arrests of prominent citizens were to be made during the night.

The possibility of international complications came to light with the arrest in Detroit of a man whose name the police will not give out. It is claimed this man is charged with conspiracy and held on $20,000 bail. The entire case is said to revolve around the shipment of drugs reported to be worth $50,000. Portions of this shipment, which mysteriously disappeared in transit, are said to have been found in the homes of well-known borderites.

COMPANY PROPOSES TO CONSOLIDATE

Various Public Service Franchises of B.C. Electric Railway to Be United Through Legislation

There are about fifteen companies, representing various franchises, whose interests are controlled by the B.C. Electric Power & Gas Company, which it is proposed to consolidate into one corporation, according to legal notice issued today on behalf of the company.

The proposal is to consolidate street and electric railway operations within seventy-five miles of Vancouver and fifty miles of Victoria, and to operate the various public utilities in which the company is interested, all under the name of one company.

Mr. A. T. Goward, vice-president, said last evening that the company believed consolidation would be beneficial to the public, as well as clarifying the records of the company.

FORMER MEMBER OF LEGISLATURE LAID TO REST AT ROSS BAY

Yesterday morning the funeral took place of the late James Hurst Hawthornthwaite, formerly a member of the Legislature of the Province, where he led the Socialist party. The Provincial Government was represented by Hon. William Sloan, while Mr. R. H. Pooley, leader of the Conservative opposition in the Legislature, was also in attendance. A number of these members had been associated in the House for some years with the deceased.

Many floral tributes were sent by friends of the late member. During the service the hymns "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Peace, Perfect Peace" were sung. The pallbearers were Messrs. A. H. McCallum, E. E. McCallum, W. Forrest, Captain J. B. Acland, Hon. William Sloan and Colonel Carey.

Mr. and Mrs. Brunner Found Dead in House

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Scotland Yard is investigating the circumstances of the death of Robert Brunner, former Alkali manufacturer, and his wife. They were found shot to death last night in Green Cottage, Rotherhithe, the home of their daughter, the Princess Ferdinand Leitchman, whose wedding in 1925 was one of the most brilliant functions of the London season. A housemaid said that when the bodies were found, a revolver was clutched in Mr. Brunner's hand.

Mr. Brunner, who was fifty-five years old, and the second son of the late Sir J. T. Brunner, resigned from the chairmanship of the Brunner, Mond & Company last June because of ill-health. It is understood that he recently suffered from influenza.

TO POLISH FLOORS FURNITURE LINOLEUM

It's easier with "Poliflor"

How do you polish your hardwood floors? By hand—or a weighted brush?—or have you an electric polisher?

Whatever the method, you minimize the effort in every way when you use "Poliflor." For "Poliflor" is easier to apply—it dries more quickly—it requires less laborious "rubbing-up." And what a finish! So durable—so strong to resist the hardest wear—that your floors will not require "going over" nearly so often. Because of this, "Poliflor" saves money as well as work.

"Poliflor" comes from England, where it is made by the manufacturers of the world-famous "Nugget" Shoe Polish. Like "Nugget" it is more than a polish alone. It is also a real preservative that feeds the fibres of wood or linoleum just as "Nugget" feeds leather. And it is antiseptic—floors waxed with "Poliflor" are always germ-free.

A single tin will be enough to convince you that "Poliflor" is the best wax for your floors and furniture.

Your dealer carries it. Investigate for yourself.

BUILDING SOCIETY PROJECT ADVANCES

Careful Organization and Management—Secured by Experienced Directorate

Subscriptions for shares of the Capital Home Building Society have reached a point where, in the opinion of the temporary board, it will soon be justified in taking steps to incorporate the concern under the Investment and Loan Societies Act. The board has therefore instructed the Society's solicitors to draft rules for the conduct of the Society, which will be submitted to a shareholder's meeting to be summoned within the next few weeks.

The rules will be on similar lines to those under the operation of societies which have operated in Victoria since 1888, well known as the Victoria and the Greater Victoria Building Societies. These institutions have done much good work in enabling people of moderate means to attain ownership of their homes, either by building, purchase or the liquidation of existing mortgages.

In fact, the word building in the title has become, to some extent, a misnomer, as in practice it is found that the majority of their loans are made for the last-named purpose. The management of these local societies has always been on the most conservative lines and their traditions and the personnel of the officials and members generally has been to a large extent continuous.

For instance, the acting president of the newly organized Capital Home Building Society, Alferman Marchant, has been president of the Greater Victoria since its beginning, and was formerly on the board of the Victoria No. 2, and was president of the King Edward, Messrs. A. B. Brindley and L. E. Gower, members of the new board, are directors of the Greater Victoria. The acting secretary of the Capital, Mr. T. J. Chambers, is also secretary of the Victoria No. 2 and the Greater Victoria. The two other members of the Capital directorate, Major Kirkpatrick Crockett and Mr. E. C. Howler represent new talent whose business experience will be of value to the society.

For Street Wear

While certain types of women have only one color problem—that of either fair or complexion—the woman with auburn hair and pale skin has two. Her hair is a precious possession, and must be guarded carefully against all shades that will take away from its coppery glint, and her skin must equally be watched that an unfriendly tone may not give it a sallowish cast or add to its pallor.

For her street colors she has two greens, but she must make sure that the shutter green is not so dark that it forms a contrast to her skin. Such a possibility may occur since all shutter greens will probably not be of an identical shade. The greens given are especially helpful in bringing out the color in blue eyes.

Good
Shutter green
Medium green
Brick or henna
Tostolushell (light golden brown)

For the reasons given above, this type must take no liberties with the following colors:

Avoid
Red
Strong blue
Dark green
Yellow
Violet
Orange
Fuchsia
Pure pink and rose

COMMUNITY DeLuxe Stainless Knives

A Triumph in the Art of Silversmithing

Keen as Carving Knives
With Blades that Gleam
Like Polished Silver.

COMMUNITY PLATE WEEK IN VICTORIA—Last Day

DINNER KNIVES have always been a problem to the housewife who likes her table to be above reproach. If she bought plated knives they looked "nice enough", but would not cut and could not be sharpened. If she bought stainless steel knives for their sharpness, she found that the dull grey of the steel blades "looked ugly" by contrast with the gleaming beauty of the other table pieces. What was she to do? The perfect knife had not yet been invented.

But Community craftsmen were working on this very problem. They discovered the perfect knife—COMMUNITY DE LUXE STAINLESS, with blades that gleam like polished silver, keen as carving knives and even more immune to rust, stains and tarnish than ordinary stainless. And they never lose their wondrous brilliance. The silver finish is part of the steel itself.

And so knives have become the most beautiful pieces of the table service—the least bothersome to keep gleamingly lovely. Drop in and see COMMUNITY DE LUXE STAINLESS KNIVES. You will find them an irresistible inducement to modernize your table service.

Your Most Becoming Colors
By DOROTHY STOTE

Auburn Hair and Pale Complexion
For Street Wear
While certain types of women have only one color problem—that of either fair or complexion—the woman with auburn hair and pale skin has two. Her hair is a precious possession, and must be guarded carefully against all shades that will take away from its coppery glint, and her skin must equally be watched that an unfriendly tone may not give it a sallowish cast or add to its pallor.
For her street colors she has two greens, but she must make sure that the shutter green is not so dark that it forms a contrast to her skin. Such a possibility may occur since all shutter greens will probably not be of an identical shade. The greens given are especially helpful in bringing out the color in blue eyes.

ARTICHOKES MAY BE MADE PAYING CROP

Cultivation of Fodder Plant Proves Profitable on Island and Will Be Further Investigated

The cultivation of Mammoth White French Jerusalem Artichokes in this Province will be investigated this year. It is announced, particularly on Vancouver Island. This is a plant that has been experimented with to some considerable extent already, and the reports received by the Department of Agriculture by those who have made a specialty of it are favorable.

In the Cedar district near Nanaimo, there has been a series of experiments carried on by one stock-raiser there covering a number of years, and with very gratifying results. The plants attained to a very great height there and when cut gave excellent results when used as ensilage.

The artichoke contains a very large percentage of sugar and this makes the ensilage that was obtained from it very palatable for livestock.

In addition to this the tubers make excellent food for swine and cattle, and are relished also as human food.

In the experiments that have been carried out near Nanaimo, a yield of nineteen tons to the acre was obtained in the forage that was cut, while at the same time the production of tubers was twelve and a half tons.

An additional use to which it may eventually be possible to put the artichokes is said to be in the line of a sugar-producing crop. Experiments are being carried on in the United States looking to this use of the crop and the sugar content of the plant is held to be very high and the results promising.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—It was reported here on good authority that Jack Adams, who has been starring at the centre ice position for a number of seasons with St. Paul, representative of this city in the N.H.L., has been sold to the Ottawa Senators in a cash deal between the two clubs.

$20,000 HUNTING CAR

Mighty Indian Nurod Acquires Sumptuous Traveling Quarters for "Stalking" Big Game

Camouflaged in green, brown and other shades of the jungles so as to deceive the keen eyes of wild animals, a special hunting automobile has been completed in London for Rajah S. M. Saadat Ali Khan, of Nampara, India. A dazle light to bewilder tigers and lions is part of the equipment of the car, which cost about $20,000. The car is fifty horsepower and was designed for exclusive use in the jungles. It has buffers in front and behind to protect it from charges by wild animals. It has room for six persons. Included in its equipment is an ice box for cooling bottled drinks, a water tank, a first-aid outfit and clips for rifles and shotguns.

HOW JOFFRE WON A KISS

And British Officer Makes Valiant Bid for One From American Girl

Among the good yarns in Trans-Atlantic Travelers, by Charles Spedding, purser of the Aquitania, over following is among the best: A pretty young American girl crossing the ocean on the same steamer with Marshal Joffre asked him if he had ever killed a German. "Yes," replied the Marshal. "With which hand?" she asked. "With my right hand," he answered. Whereupon she raised his right hand to her lips and kissed it. A British officer standing nearby promptly exclaimed, "I've killed two Germans." "With which hand?" the girl asked. "I bit them to death," he answered.

Life in New York Hotel Somewhat of a Nightmare
—Never Left Time to Open Letters—Chamber of Commerce Reception

By QUEEN MARIE

My hotel life in New York has remained somewhat of a nightmare to me. Every moment I was called away from something I had just started to do to listen to someone, or to answer someone or to receive someone who would "only take a moment."

Everywhere there were policemen, detectives, stray diplomats, anxious maids, desperate ladies-in-waiting and eager people of every degree who wanted to see me.

I was never left breathing space to open a letter. It was rush, rush, rush, and all the time my dog Crag was getting in my way. He would carry my slippers into every room, scattering them all over the place, so as to impress upon everyone that he and he alone was my faithful guardian.

Audiences were waiting me when I returned to the hotel, and there were more packages and more flowers. Everywhere the police stood about in a way to which I had not been accustomed in Europe. They were friendly, cheerful and patient, but nevertheless I took a little time to get accustomed to being courted as though one were something infinitely precious which others might try to steal. I found, however, that the only way to stand the strange and disconcerting state of affairs was to make personal friends of these policemen, and to even take them into every joke.

I dressed, somehow, as I nowadays always seem to dress, in a room with every door open, the floor strewn with flowers, the chairs piled with bundles, and the labels bending beneath the weight of letters, hats, dresses, cloaks, shoes, fans and gloves. Stockings and perfume bottles were heaped on the bed, and two haggard maids, dazed and hollow-eyed, were misunderstanding orders and placing Crown Jewels upon the last free stool. With it all the absurd "Craggie" was marching up and down with a green and red slipper in his mouth, officiously insisting that he was part of the show.

Chamber of Commerce

An official reception was given to me in grand and solemn style by the Chamber of Commerce. It was flattering, but slightly awe-inspiring, and would probably have made me quake in my shoes if I had had time to be frightened. It was the first time that a woman had been received in those sacred halls, and I was duly impressed.

Perfectly charming things were said to me by Mr. William L. Belmont, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce. Pulling myself together, I faced that sea of faces and answered in a calm, assured voice as if they were an everyday occurrence. This emotional ordeal over, we all went up to lunch. It being the most cheerful of meals, as if we had known each other for years.

Off for Philadelphia. You might well imagine that this was enough for one day, but not so. Instead of being allowed to gather my wits in a quiet room, I was hustled off to the train for Philadelphia. During the two hours' drive I did have a little peace and I tried to remake my mentality to be ready for the next act of this play of which I was the whirling and un-quieting centre. I tried to make people explain just what would be expected of me in Philadelphia. I wanted to know whom I would meet and on what occasions I would be expected to answer greetings to me. Well, I learned soon.

City Police Court

Lu Wing and Sing, Chinamen, were each fined the sum of $15 and $2.50 costs in the City Police Court yesterday on a charge of being found in an opium den, situated at 624 Flagstaff Street. The two accused pleaded guilty, and paid the fines. Magistrate Jay, who presided over the court, remanded until next Wednesday, Anthony Durham, who is charged with retaining in his possession a quantity of gasoline, knowing the same to have been stolen.

MR. BEASLEY VISITS VENTURA OIL FIELDS

New Wells Coming in Daily Despite
Talk of Supply Petering Out,
Says Victoria Manager

Despite the talk of the world's oil supply petering out, there seems to be no letting up in the industry, according to Mr. Hal Beasley, Victoria manager of the Union Oil Company, who has just returned from a trip to the company's fields at Ventura, California.

Mr. Beasley made the trip to the oil fields on one of the company's steamers, the La Placencia. He says that all oil companies are keeping their men steadily employed, and that despite the talk of the world's oil supply petering out, new wells are coming in every day.

The territory around Ventura, Mr. Beasley states, is just one mass of oil-well towers. They come right down to the water's edge at the back of Ventura Harbor. The Union Oil Company's holdings are chiefly situated on Signal Hill. The Associated and Shell oil companies are the other big operators in that district.

Price of gasoline in Southern California is sixteen and one-half cents but some of the independents are selling at fifteen and one-half cents. Business conditions were good in the South, Mr. Beasley stated.

Bringing in the Ocean
Every speaker at the dinner had advertised the town. The speakers all said that had the town been on the coast it would have been the world's first city.
A visiting speaker was called on next.
"Gentlemen," he said, "I am impressed by your town as much as you are, and believe I can suggest a way in which you can get your wish." All leaned forward, and he added: "This is what you should do. Obtain a large pipe, run it from your town to the ocean, and if you can suck as hard as you can blow, the ocean will soon be alongside."

Milady's Dance Frocks

Evening Dresses Are Designed From Many Materials,
Moire and Georgette Popular—Trimmings Used
Sparingly

Evening dresses are now made of many materials—pale or bright soft chiffon, patterned silk, gold and silver tissue, black, white, or colored lace, velvet and net embroidered with sequins and beads, moire of clear colors, or white with silver trimmings. Style is often decided by texture, says an article in The London Times.

A moire dress is swathed about the figure and bunched into a side drape held by a jewelled clasp. A clear, pale-blue moire has the hem trimmed with little tabs. On the right hip is a big bow and ends, on the shoulder a silver flower, and the shoes are silver, laced with blue moire laces. In pink moire a dress is draped to the right hip, where it is bunched like a small pannier; a flight of swallows in diamond embroidery trims the bodice; the shoes are of pink moire with paste-studded heels. Round the throat is a narrow black velvet ribbon, from which hangs a diamond pendant, and a narrow black velvet ribbon with a diamond clasp is at the wrist. Moire inspires fashions of the 19th century.

Georgette Frocks
Georgette dresses are trimmed with fringe. A white georgette dress has a silver fringe under the hem and a large silver flower embroidered on the hip; the skirt falls in loose panels and the bodice has a cape back and front edged with silver fringe; the shoes are colored—colored shoes are a new way of giving color to black or white. Bright red, or mauve and purple shoes may be worn with black or white, or the shoes may be white or black with colored heels. A fan will be of the same color as the shoes.
An orange velvet dress has a fringe of fur tabs round the hem of the skirt. Another velvet dress has a deep hem embroidered in beads, and sequins, and no other trimmings. A black chiffon dress has a hem embroidered in scarlet poppies and no color on the bodice. A slim bodice and slim hips to a skirt, with a full, trimmed hem which swings a little, make a broad figure look slim. A plain black dress of velvet, varnished lace, or chiffon may be worn under a gold lame cape lined with black velvet and lame shoes. Such a dress may have pearls, diamonds, or heavy gold chains as the only trimming. A simple dress and an elaborate cloak are right for a theatre or a restaurant.

Fashionable Capes
Lame cloaks and capes lined with velvet are fashionable. There is one of dull silver lined with purple velvet to wear over a fuchsia-colored chiffon dress. Another of dull gold lined with dark green velvet is worn over a georgette dress of lime-green gold. A deep orange velvet cape is put over a yellow chiffon dress brocaded in velvet. The cape and the dress are trimmed with ermine; the cape has an ermine collar and hem; the dress is made with long medieval sleeves with bands of ermine round the cuffs. A silver lame dress trimmed with green silk fringe winding in spirals up to one shoulder is worn with a green velvet cape lined green and silver lame. A gorgeous cape is made of scarlet and gold lame trimmed with gold fringe. A black satin shawl has a black fringed edge and is printed in bunches of bright flowers. Bright flowered silks make dinner dresses; they are cut simply with pleats to give width, and they are worn under plain black capes or fur. An ermine cape is lined with black velvet, which is disclosed by a slit down the back. Sleeves are slit in the same way. A turquoise velvet cloak is trimmed with white fur and smocked across the shoulders and sleeves. A magenta velvet cape is gathered into a low waist line behind and has a collar made of magenta and rose pink silk roses, ivory white and rose pink respectively.

gentle and rose pink silk roses, ivory white and rose pink respectively.
Light Trimmings
Wing sleeves, one or two, floating capes, slender hoods, with tassels, boleros, trim dance and dinner dresses. All trimmings and draperies are light and shadowy. Bashes, jewelled belts, feather tassels, fringed flounces, are put on simply draped skirts, sparingly. A belt of gleaming jewels is trimming enough for a lace or chiffon dress. A colored velvet sash suffices for a georgette dance dress. A velvet dress which has flat flounces needs no other trimming on the skirt, and the bodice may have a lace or fur collar. Feather trimmings are lightly used in tufts, in fringes, in long tassels. Under black lace or chiffon colored slips are usual, and there are gussets in evening skirts.

 There is a type of tripper who would get bored anywhere, and Paris is one of the places to which these objectionable people flock in hordes.
 "Vous êtes un frog, et je suis de la race de los bulldogs," was a remark I actually heard a Cockney tourist make to a waiter in a French restaurant. Luckily, the waiter did not understand a word.
 Somewhat more pleasing was the translation from French to English achieved by an Irishman in Paris after his seventeenth drink.
 "Pat," his friend inquired, "what does 'Vive la France' mean?"
 "It's French for 'Rule Britannia!'" he replied.

MAGNIFICENT PLAY GIVEN OVATION

MIL. GEORGE ARLISS THUNDER-OLDS! APPLAUDED IN "OLD ENGLISH!"

At Conclusion of Remarkable Performance at Royal Victoria Theatre Last Night Makes Speech

When, for the purposes of the drama, there come together two great artists like George Arliss, one of the best-known names on the English-speaking stage today, and John Galsworthy, whose name occupies a similar position in the world of literature, the playing public very justly expects something quite unusual. And this is what the audience at the Royal Victoria found last evening in "Old English," written by the latter, produced and acted by the former, when the play had the first of its three nights' production here. It is a masterpiece, a magnificent work of art in the sense of being superb drama, superbly acted. How well acted the attitude of the audience itself bore witness when at the last, after the final exposition of the "Great Old Sinner's" principle of independence, they had witnessed, keenly touched in the face of an incident which had an intensity of realism which made it every spectator's own experience.

Everyone who knows the Forsyte Saga knows Galsworthy's powerful gift at character drawing. With Mr. Arliss' splendid interpretation of the character of old Sylvanus Heythrop, a bluff old sinner, shipowner, and at eighty-six shrewd as the sharpest of his associates, is made within a short two hours an outstandingly vigorous and as humanly real as that of Old Jolyn in hundreds of pages. The part played by Mr. Arliss is a sharp contrast to that of the suave Marcell, in which he appeared on the occasion of his last appearance here. But it has the same splendid consistency, every movement, every gesture, every uplift of the eyebrow and smask of the lips, every carefully considered intonation of the voice, building into the mind of the onlooker the conception of a dynamic and autocratic old man, who, though frail in body, has a penetrating and shrewd mind, a saving independence of spirit, an indomitable will, which carries him through the tangle which threatens to enmesh him at the last. It is an unforgettable portrait, one which inspires love of veneration for the grey locks and more of fugitive admiration for the fearless devilment of the man.

Very Heavy Role
 The part of Sylvanus Heythrop, acted by Mr. Arliss, is an unusually heavy one. He is on the stage when the curtain goes up and almost constantly from that point until the end of the play, he is decidedly decrepit in body. But the fighting spirit shows itself at the very beginning, and throughout the play the incongruity of these so strangely associated elements has to be carried.

He's a wonderful old man; a treat to see him cross the stage. Everything has to wait for him! his man, Meller, says at one point. One feels this about old Sylvanus. And because he is such a dominating character there is an ease and naturalness in the position of everyone else in the play. It is only to be expected that in the end his business associates must be either browbeaten and cowed or openly aligned against him as his enemies. Among the former are Joseph Pillin, a part splendidly delineated by Ivan F. Simpson. A creaking pessimist, he is an admirable foil to his daredevil old friend Sylvanus. They are contemporaries, and Simpson's characterization of this very different type of old man is indeed very fine. There is also Pillin's son, "Bob," played by Alan Trotter, who blossoms forth as a youth of considerably more "sand" than old Sylvanus had ever credited him with. Ventrone, a vindictive and grasping solicitor, was strongly played by Murray Kinnell. Two very fine character parts fell to Ivy Marshall and Molly Johnson as Rosemund Jarne, widow of old Heythrop's "sub-rosa" son, and as her daughter, Phyllis. Both were most convincingly played, the latter with girlish naïveté, the former with provocative charm and spirit.

In fact, the whole company is splendidly balanced, even the minor actors being carefully chosen. When the play was over, Mr. Arliss, in response to several curtain calls, made a short and characteristically gracious speech in which he expressed his pleasure in returning here again to play, and announcing his intention of not allowing so long a time to elapse before he again brought his company to the city, a statement which provoked the house to still further applause.

HAROLD LLOYD AT COLUMBIA THEATRE

Famous Screen Comedian's Classic, "The Freshman," Now Showing at Local House

Harold Lloyd, the arch conspirator against sensitive spines and ticklish ribs, presents his highest contribution to the art of screen fun in "The Freshman," now showing at the Columbia Theatre.

A story of college life, with himself the motivating factor, "The Freshman" is probably the funniest thing Lloyd has done, which goes for "Grandma's Boy," "Safety Last," "Girl Shy," and "Hot Water." Certainly it is his biggest production.

COLISEUM Nothing worried Mrs. Wiggs and her house-keeping methods.

maucpian is as likely to be found hidden under the bed as in its proper place. But on the other hand trifles here at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, has taken nothing from any other author or dramatist's version of the legend. He shows the Jew in various phases of history over a period of fifteen hundred years, from the very day of the Crucifixion until the time of the Spanish Inquisition. The action of the drama is divided into four periods. The first is the Crucifixion; the second is the period of the Crusades; the third is the period of the Unknown Knight in the jousts outside the walls of Antioch, in Syria. The third reveals him as a merchant in Sicily, in the thirteenth century; and the last shows him in the toils of the Inquisition.

DOMINION Michael Arlen is one of the phenomena of our age.

THEATRE The phenomena of our age, Michael Arlen, is a man who can compromise on anything, though he once said, "Discretion is the better part of literature."

"The Ace of Cads," a short story contained in "Moggy," was purchased from Arlen by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. Production officials deemed it a perfect vehicle for Adolphe Menjou. The finished picture plays at the Dominion Theatre all week. In addition to Menjou, Alice Joyce and Norman Trevor are featured. Luther Reed directed for Paramount.

Mrs. Algernon Sladen Is Released in Italy

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Daily Sketch today prints an item from Mrs. Algernon Sladen, niece of Lord Dunmore, who was under arrest at Volcano, Italy, for allegedly making "Socialistic utterances" against Premier Mussolini, to the effect that after spending three days and nights in jail her husband and the British consul secured her release on bail. Subsequently the British ambassador visited Premier Mussolini and the charge against her was dismissed.

Mrs. Sladen, according to the latter, says her threat had its origin in a conversation in a restaurant in which she "merely criticized Fascism academically and theoretically," and an Italian woman who disliked her, reported it to the authorities.

Mr. George Arliss had just finished shaking hands with The Colonist reporter, when a pretty little gurgling sound in a dusky corner of the room startled the latter.

"This is our parrot. We have had it for twenty-five years," Mr. Arliss explained. "It goes everywhere with us."

This was interesting. It was also very tactful—both on the part of Mr. Arliss and "Polly," for it afforded the informal opening for conversation, which makes an interview so much pleasanter for everyone concerned. It led, quite naturally, to a question as to whether Polly ever took part in Mr. Arliss' plays, which he replied that he did not approve of animals on the stage, not as one knowing his B.C.A. sympathies might assume, because he associated the idea with cruelty to animals.

"Animals on the stage are generally excruciating," he added. "Their introduction into a play nearly always means bad construction. And they take the mind of the audience off the play, which is never artistic. This idea of having real birds that fly about the stage is wrong. There should be nothing on the stage to distract the audience from the story of the play."

Spoke as Playwright
Mr. Arliss spoke not only as an actor, but also as a playwright. Subsequently in the course of the conversation, he insisted that the public as a rule was very little concerned with the authors of plays; in fact, seldom knew who wrote such and such a play. That is probably why one knows the name of Mr. George Arliss, the actor, so well, and hears so little about Mr. George Arliss, the author. Yet he is a playwright, and an author in other respects as well. In collaboration with Mrs. Hamlin, in 1917, he wrote "Hamilton," which played for two years. Another of his own plays was "There and Back," of much earlier date.

"But I don't pose as a playwright; it is only an offshoot," he says with modest humor. Nevertheless, he contends that actors should, and often do, make very successful authors of plays. Some of the best plays produced in the last two years in America have been by actors, including "Is This So?" and "Cradle Snatchers."

"I was looking over the list of plays not very long ago, and was pleased to find how many had been written by actors. The only disadvantage about actors writing plays is that they know too much about it, and they are not likely to get any new angle. Where the author is not an actor, on the other hand, it is a case of 'fools rushing where angels fear to tread.' In other words, the new playwright will be likely to take liberties, which occasionally turn out successfully," he supplemented.

Mr. Arliss was very generous in unfolding his views. But as a rule the audience did not know who wrote a play, and did not care, he insisted in his quiet, logical voice. They knew Galsworthy, Shaw and Pinero—but very little beyond these. Yes, he conceded, they might know more about dramatists in the smaller towns where there was not the opportunity to see the play itself. But in the big cities where they could see the thing acted, the literature of the drama held very little interest. This he qualified by adding that amateur productions, of course, added a great deal of interest to the study of the drama.

Favorite Parts
It was rather a hackneyed question, but the reporter felt she must ask Mr. Arliss what were his favorite parts. He did not in the least mind answering this.

"Any part character part in which the audience is interested," he gave as a general definition. But the audience was interested only in the human character. Whatever difference of opinion one might have about the play, no one could say that his role in "Old English" was not human and well drawn from beginning to end.

This, of course, implied that "Old English" is one of his favorite plays. His role of Duke of St. Oliphant in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith" was another.

"He was a real man," he said, turning over the memory of the character in his mind. "There are so many parts written where the actor is merely the mouthpiece for the author, where the author confuses the idea of a character and something which shall be merely a channel for their own ideas. This doesn't make for interest."

Likes Talking Shop
Mr. Arliss confesses that he likes talking shop with other actors. Personally he did not think that one lost anything by exchanging ideas with people of the same business.

"Of course, if you are led on to talk about yourself all the time, it doesn't help you. But get the other man to talk about himself a little, and you may get some very useful information. In fact," he added with a twinkle in his eye, "I like to go and see even very bad actors. I can get all sorts of hints—yes, negative ones!"

Talking of Booth Tarkington, he had asked this well-known American playwright if he did not find it very difficult to live in Cincinnati when he had so much business in New York. Mr. Tarkington had said that he wrote largely about Cincinnati things, and if he moved to New York and wrote his plays there, they would lose their sincerity of atmosphere.

Comfort of Commonplace
Mr. Arliss, speaking this time as an author, suggested the kind of surroundings which he found most congenial to his muse. His own study, wherever it might be, where he could have all his own things around him in the place where he was accustomed to seeing them every day.

"Preferably a place that is unattractive outside," he added. "A beautiful country would be too distracting."

As a matter of fact, whenever he settles down to do any writing (and in various ways he does quite a bit, articles for magazines, etc.) he prefers to get a room in an enormous hotel with about a thousand rooms, shut himself up, and refuse callers and telephone wires. "Retreat" was written in this way.

"There I do my best work," he says. Stage Characters
The interview wandered into the channels of character writing, and Mr. Arliss confessed that probably the best character writing was done by people who knew certain types through stage representations by good actors rather than by actual contact with such characters in real life. The play character, in other words, was a more crystallized version of type than most authors could achieve by observation of life. The actor assisted this, of course, by visualizing (to cite an example) an old-fashioned English butler as the playwright with an idea of an old father as played by the actor whom they knew. There was likely to be humanity in that character.

"I would much rather a man write round a stage character than just write words—unless there is a real character in his mind, as I am sure Galsworthy had when he wrote 'Old English.'"

Travel Together
Mrs. Arliss, although she no longer plays in Mr. Arliss' or any other productions, still always travels with her husband. Neither of them is fond of actual travel, although they both enjoy seeing new places and new people. Mrs. Arliss may be remembered, appeared here with her husband in "Disraeli," the last play in which he played in Victoria. Travel, as travel, does not appeal to him.

"My ideal is to live in one room, provided it has plenty of books and tobacco," said the great actor with a whimsical smile as he once more shook hands with his interviewer. He paid a very cordial salute to the genius of his manager, Mr. Winthrop Ames, when he called him a "master of production."

All actors of achievement have played roles, but it has remained for Mr. George Arliss alone to star in such a variety of parts, of so many different nationalities. Beginning with the Japanese Zukkuri in "The Daring of the Gods," in turn Mr. Arliss has represented the Danish in "Disraeli," the English in "Disraeli" and "Old English," the American in "Alexander Hamilton," the Italian in "Fagotini," the Russian in "Tarkington's 'Poldekina,'" the French in "Jacques Duval," the Scottish in Barrie's "The Professor's Love Story," and, finally, the Hindu in Archer's "The Green Goddess." In addition to these personages, Mr. Arliss acted the title role of Molnar's "The Devil," a cosmopolitan character, no doubt, but written by an Australian.

Father Was Printer
The father of Mr. George Arliss was a London printer and publisher, with whom the son worked for a while, but before he reached his majority he yielded to the call of the stage and made his debut in a silent role in "Raved From the Sea," with the Elephant and Castle Stock Company in London. Whatever the part, Arliss went to the life of that person for study, sometimes to the vexation of those acting with him. The following year the young actor joined a provincial touring company, which gave him experience in twenty different leading characters. He then acted ten years in London, pursuing his studies at the British museum, on the streets, in the shops, wherever he happened to be or wherever his inquiring mind went him.

His first visit to the United States was with Mrs. Patrick Campbell in 1901, when his impersonation of Gayley Drummond in Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and his Duke of St. Oliphant in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith," won him instant recognition from the American public.

David Belasco then engaged him to play Zukkuri with Blanche Bates in "The Daring of the Gods." Mr. Arliss' stellar debut was made in "The Devil," and this was followed by his acting the titular part of William J. Locke's "Septimus." In addition to the plays already mentioned, there was, following his Zukkuri and before his starring period, his association with that notable organization Mrs. Elsie gathered together under the name of the Manhattan Company. With this Arliss appeared, as Raoul Berlin in "Leah Kierstein," the Marquis of Steyne in "Hecky Sharp," Sir William Clive-Darby in "The New York Idea," Urie Brendel in "Roamerheim," and in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

Mr. Arliss has never appeared in Shakespeare, a curious fact when one considers his long training in the English provinces, but by some strange trick of fate, whenever he was about to act Shakespeare, something happened. He would like to act Iago, Shylock and Benedick, but has no interest in Hamlet.

Trotzky and Colleagues Get Censure Vote Only

MOSCOW, Nov. 4.—Trotzky, Zinoviev, Kamenef and other rebellious leaders emerged from the ten-day Communist conference, which closed last night, with nothing worse than a vote of censure against them for their activities.

Only recently Trotzky and Kamenef were ousted from the all-powerful political bureau and Zinoviev was expelled from the Third Communist International. What further action would be taken in their case was a matter of speculation, but it is clear from the relatively moderate tone of the resolution against them, that the party is anxious to avoid widening the existing cleavage.

SEES EXPANSION OF APPLE MARKET

MR. W. H. ROBERTSON TELLS ROTARIANS OF EXPORT TRADE IN CANADIAN FRUIT

Friendly Relations of Countries on Pacific Promoted by Rotary Faculty, Mr. Howard Booth Says

"As our apples become better known, our markets overseas will be expanded," Mr. W. H. Robertson, Provincial horticulturist, told members of the Victoria Rotary Club at their luncheon gathering yesterday in the Empress Hotel ballroom, during an address in connection with the observance of "Apple Week."

The speaker observed that at the present time Canada was shipping her apples to Great Britain, New Zealand, India, China, South Africa, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and claimed that these markets would become of great importance to the Dominion in future.

Mr. Robertson pointed out that Apple Week was not only a national undertaking, but was really international, in that the present week was being observed both in Canada and the United States as "Apple Week." The campaign was being held for the purpose of urging "Mr. and Mrs. Consumer" to lay in a supply of apples at this time, and thereby have the assurance of health, happiness and prosperity during the winter for themselves and the little consumers.

After telling of the achievements of British Columbia McIntosh Reds at the Imperial Fruit Show in London, Mr. Robertson sketched the development of Canada's great and valuable apple industry, and explained the care with which the grades and quality are maintained by the co-operation of growers' associations and the various Dominion and Provincial Agricultural Departments.

Mr. Howard Booth, prominent member of the Vancouver Rotary Club, gave an interesting review of the Pacific Rotary Conference, held during the summer at Honolulu. The keynote of the gathering, at which he was the sole representative of Canadian Rotarians, was the promotion of international amity and goodwill between countries bordering on the Pacific.

The speaker declared that Honolulu was a fully modern city, and set an example to the world in assimilation of various races, Filipino, Chinese and white people, working side by side in the stores. He gave a colorful sketch of the beauties of Hawaii, and the remarkable volcanic outbursts of the past year.

Rotarians extended congratulations to Messrs. George Orand and Ernie Hysward upon the anniversary of their birthdays.

GOUT KILLED ADAM SAYS OLD DEMOCRAT

Sixteenth Century Writing Pronounces Verdict—No Mention of "An Apple a Day"

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Adam died of the gout, says an ancient document held by the Herald's College of London, Eng. The document, the origin of which is unknown, but which was written in the sixteenth century, professes to trace the genealogy of the Anglo-Saxon Kings back to Adam and Eve. Adam succumbed to the "Gout," it is declared, and was buried in Hebron. Whether if he had continued to eat an apple a day he would have kept the doctor away, is not mentioned.

In similar fashion, story after story in Greek mythology rests on the apple. You will remember the particular one of the "Apple of Discord." At some splendid wedding of a prince and princess the wicked fairy comes in and spoils the entire happiness of the occasion, but incidentally does some service by furnishing the plot of the story. Thus, at the marriage of Thetis and Peleus the goddess Discord arrives, not having been invited to the feast, and presents as a wedding gift a golden apple on which is inscribed "For the Most Beautiful," and for which three goddesses, Minerva, Juno (wife of Jupiter and queen of the goddesses) and Venus competed. Paris, Prince of Troy, was established as umpire, and even in those days bribery of voters seems to have been known as each goddess offered Paris a gift if he would give her the apple. He finally chose Venus as the most beautiful because she had promised to give him as a wife the woman of his choice. He chose Helen, who was the wife of another gentleman, but apparently that made no difference. In the attempt to recover Helen the Greeks invaded Troy and the Trojan War came about. So, if the apple lies at the root of all our religion, an apple also lay at the root of remote antiquity's greatest war.

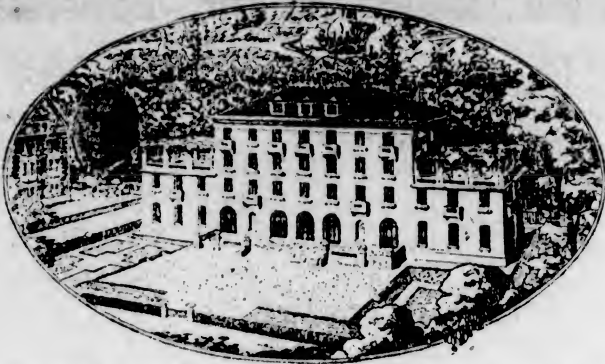

Our belief in the old verse handed down from England, "Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away," has an origin without superstition. The use of the apple does promote health and the modern medical fact is recorded in the mythology of nations all over the world. In the stories of the Arabs, in the stories of the Persians, the apple always appeared as a life-bringing, health-giving medium, even in the old poems and songs of the Scandinavians of Northern Europe the apple appears in the same light. It was by constantly partaking of the indestructible apple of Idun that the gods of Valhalla retained their immortality.

In historic times the crab apple, so-called on account of its sour, biting taste, like the nip of a crab, was found all over Europe. Its real origin, so far as historians can discover, was exactly where the Bible puts it, that is to say, the first apple trees were probably found somewhere in that district back of Palestine and Asia Minor; in a rough way, towards Mesopotamia, where the Paradise of the Bible was located.

Fish Shoals Spotted By Navy Dirigibles
PARIS, Nov. 4.—Navy dirigibles operated by officers in training have been unusually successful in locating shoals of sardines and herring for fishermen off the coast of France. Previous trials with airplanes had met with indifferent success, but the dirigible, able to remain longer over the areas searched, located the fish with great accuracy.

News of the presence of the fish at various points is relayed to the nearest port where fishermen assemble. The service costs the fishermen nothing, as the work is done in the course of the regular navigation training.

Mr. Maitland Addresses Young Conservatives at New Westminster—Officers Elected

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 3.—Mr. A. M. (Bert) Gilley was elected president of the New Westminster Young Conservative Association at its annual meeting, Tuesday night. He succeeds Mr. E. A. Walsh in this office. Other officers elected were: Hon. president, Senator J. D. Taylor; first vice-president, Mr. J. W. Smith; second vice-president, Mr. Hugh Cunningham; secretary, Mr. S. T. Darr; executive, Messrs. V. D. Jones, Bert Moulton, Dr. A. L. McQuarrie, A. W.

Dawe, K.C., MacGowan and W. W. McDonald.

The political situation in British Columbia, and the possibility of an early election, were dealt with in an address by Mr. R. L. Maitland, president of the Provincial Conservative Association. The voters of the Province, declared Mr. Maitland, were tired of the Oliver Government. Every cabinet minister in the Oliver Administration had been at work throughout the Province in the recent Federal election, he stated. They had not done this primarily to elect Premier King and his Government, but in an effort to prove that they themselves and the Oliver Government were popular.

The first object of any government was to inspire confidence in the public, said the speaker, yet the Oliver Government had shaken the confidence of British Columbia people in every respect. The prime in-sue facing the Government was the need to cut down taxation and restore confidence. Another great demand was the reduction of the succession duties if outsiders were to come to the Province.

"Beau Geste"

A Great Mystery Story

By PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER WREN

Three brothers, John, Michael and Digby, came suddenly and quietly into their home in England, following the theft of the Blue Water, a valuable sapphire, owned by their aunt, Lady Bradshaw. Michael, the eldest, leaves first. Then Digby, and finally John. John, believing his brothers have gone to join the French Foreign Legion, goes to Paris to enlist. He finds a fast friendship with a Frenchman, a handsome, dark, and slender, who is sure he will be with them in the ship taking them to Oran, Africa, the coast of the French empire. He is, however, refused to join the recruits. He is, however, beaten by the Americans. At Oran, he meets Digby and Michael. For the first time they come into contact with a man who was to have a lot to do with their unhappy future. He was Sergeant Lejeune, one of the most cruel, but courageous members of the entire Legion.

Corporal Dupre was not a bad fellow at heart, but "he had got to live," and it grew clearer and clearer, as the weeks went by, that we three could do nothing right and hold nothing wrong.

Our chief offence was that we would commit no offence, but we felt we walked on very thin ice.

In less than a couple of months we were dismissed as recruits and became full-blown legionnaires.

Above the head of my bed appeared a printed pasteboard card, bearing the legend, John Smith, No. 15555, Soldier, 2nd Class, and I was a (second-class) Soldier of Fortune, taking my place in the ranks of my battalion. In time I should be a Soldier 1st Class, if I was good.

Michael, Digby, the two Americans, Maria, and St. Andre came to the battalion at the same time, and our little party kept together.

We now learned what marching really is, and why the Legion is known in the Nineteenth Army Corps as the cavalry of the desert. The marches were of appalling length at an unvarying five kilometres an hour. Over English roads, in the English climate, and with the English soldier's kit, they would have been incredible. Over sand and desert stones, under the African sun, and with the much heavier kit of the legionary (which includes tent-cloth, firewood, a blanket and a spare uniform), they were infinitely more so.

On one occasion we took a stroll of five hundred miles, marching continuously at thirty miles a day, as the Colonel thought we wanted "airing."

In addition to these marches, we had admirable training in skirmishing and scouting, plenty of company and battalion drill, first-aid, field engineering, varied rifle-range work and the theory of infantry warfare.

By the time we three felt ourselves old soldiers, we also began to feel we were stagnating mentally, and becoming mechanical, bored and stale. Night after night of staring at the Sidi-bel-Abbes was not good enough, and our brains were demanding exercise.

Michael decided that we should study Arabic, both for the good of our souls and with a view to future usefulness at such time as we should be generalists, either in diplomatic missions or military governorships.

Our Arabic proved useful before then.

We got books from the library, engaged a half-civilized clerk, who worked in the Bureau Arabe, to meet us for an hour, four evenings a week, for conversation; and took to haunting Arab cafes instead of French ones.

We distinctly liked the dignified and courteous men with whom we talked over the wonderful coffee.

We made rapid progress and, after a time, made a point of talking Arabic to each other. It is an easy language to learn, especially in a country where it is spoken.

And still Beldini haunted us like our shadow, Corporal Dupre waiting for a chance to report us, and Lejaune bided his time.

But we were wary and we were unexceptionable soldiers. Even these skillful fault-finders and fault-makers could not get an opportunity, and we were favorably noticed by our Lieutenant (Debussy) and Captain (Renoult), of whom we saw all too little. Theirs to lead us in manoeuvre and war, the non-commissioned officers' to prepare us to be led. And in this the officers assisted them only by their authority.

In every possible way, and some impossible ways, they upheld the power of the non-coms, backed them up on every occasion, took their word for everything, and supported them blindly.

There was no appeal. What the non-commissioned officer said, was true; and what he did, was right, as against the private soldier. The resulting discipline was wonderful—and so was the bitterness, hatred and despair of some of the victims of injustice and personal spite.

A sergeant will only continue punishing a victim, for the latter to earn the unfavorable notice of the officer, when the latter read the punishment book, and to find his punishment doubled—with a warning to beware lest something really serious happened to him.

The Americans were not as lucky, or not as careful, as we three. For one thing, they sometimes drank the appalling maddening filth sold in the low-class wine-shops of the Spanish quarter or the Ghetta. Crude alcohol made from figs, rice, or wood, and known as bapeli, ichum-tum, and kenjevre, while it rendered blank and discriminatingly affectionate and apt to fall heavily upon the neck of the Sergeant of the Guard, when the latter admitted him, singing joyously, in the watches of the night.

Then was Lejeune happy, and reminded them of how they had opened their mouths in his presence, upon the evening of their entry into the Legion.

When they were confined to barracks, he would have the defaulters roll called at odd times, in the hope of their missing it, and when they were in the salle de police, would see that the Sergeant of the Guard turned them out hourly, under pretence of suspecting that they had tobacco or drink.

Sometimes he would go himself to their cells, in the middle of the night, arouse them with a sudden roar, and give a swift, harsh order, in the hope that it would be disobeyed through resentment or drunken stupidity.

I think he would have given a month's pay to have succeeded in goading one of them into striking him. It was my constant fear that Buddy would do so. And daily we dined this into their ears, and prayed that something of the sort would not happen. However, they were old soldiers and wily Americans.

And so the months passed, and every week I heard from my darling. Nothing happened at Brandon Abbas.

Guests had gone to Sandhurst, the Chaplain had posted again, and Uncle Hector had postponed his homecoming after all, and had gone to Kashmir to shoot bear, as he had had poor sport with tiger in the Central Provinces.

No reference was ever made to the missing "Blue Water," no questions had been asked of Isobel, and she had volunteered no information as to our whereabouts and her being in communication with me.

Also she would "come into" her money on her next birthday, and she was then going to do a little travelling, and intended to wander in Algeria.

"Hope she comes before we go—or that we don't go before she comes," said Digby, on learning this last piece of information—for we were full of hope that we should be among those selected for the big special draft that was going south before long.

Everyone knew that a battalion, a thousand strong, was going to "demonstrate" on the border shortly, and "demonstrating" meant further peaceful penetration with the bayonet, active service, and chances of distinction, decoration, and promotion.

If we did not go we should be bitterly disappointed, and lapse into mere bored and disillusioned victims of a monotonous soul-killing routine, daily doing the drill in which we were perfect; cursing the guard-mounting, sentry-go, and endless "fatigues"; learning the things we knew by heart; performing the exercises and operations we could do blindfold; and dragging ourselves through the killing route-marches that we hated.

But what a cruel thing it was we were selected and sent off just as Isobel was coming!

On the other hand, if we were not taken (and we were still very junior soldiers), we should at any rate have Isobel's visit to Sidi-bel-Abbes to look forward to.

So great was my longing to see her that, had I been alone, I really think that I should, at times, have toyed with the idea of "going on pump," "making the promenade," which all legionnaires continually discuss and frequently attempt. This "going on pump," whatever that may mean, is the Legion name for deserting, and generally consists in slow preparation and swift capture, or a few days' thralldom in the desert, and ignominious return, or else in unpeppable torture and mutilation at the hands of the Arabs.

Less than one in a hundred succeeds in escaping, for, in addition to the patrols, the desert, and the Arabs, the native armed-pole gnomes receive a reward of twenty-five francs a head for the return of deserters, dead or alive.

Being matchless trackers, well-armed, good shots, and brave men, they are very successful bloodhounds.

However, the attempt is frequently made by madmen victims of injustice or of sheer monotony and hardship and their punishment, when caught, varies from leniency to cruel severity, according to the degree of coward from which they were suffering, and to the amount of uniform and kit they may have lost.

One man, whom I knew personally, when under sentence to appear before the supreme court martial of Oran, which in his case meant certain death, got clean away, and was known to have escaped from the country.

Several, whom I knew, went off into the desert and were either found dead and mutilated, or never heard of more; and many either escaped and surrendered again, or were brought back running, or "raging on the ground," at the end of a cord tied to the saddle of an Arab police gnom.

However, we had come here to make careers for ourselves as Soldiers of Fortune, and to become Generals in the Army of France, as other foreigners had done, from the ranks of the Legion. And we did our utmost to achieve selection for the picked battalion that was to march south for the next forward leap of the apostles of pacific penetration (or pacification of the newly-penetrated areas) of the Sahara of the Rougas.

Dachshund Now Is Returning to Favor

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Falling in step with the spirit of international rapprochement, England is receiving the dachshund, Germany's national dog back into favor. During the war London dachshunds were forced to hide in drain pipes because small boys chased them away by way of showing patriotism, but now they are restored to their former popularity.

Hundreds of new dachshunds are being imported from Germany for pets and twenty special prizes were offered for them at the Skipton Dog show recently to encourage their display.
